PHOTOGRAPHER / VISUAL STORYTELLER

“PROFESSIONAL, ORGANIZED AND
EFFICIENT, AND ALSO A WORLD-CLASS
PHOTOGRAPHER. ALWAYS DELIVERS
ABOVE EXPECTATIONS.”

Niall Bouzon, Head of Marketing – Scott Sports

B I O

From the high peaks of Switzerland and the deep ski culture of Japan to his home turf of Mt. Baker, Grant Gunderson's iconic images have captured the pure action and true essence of skiing, biking, travel and adventure in spectacular mountain ranges around the globe. A natural storyteller, Grant prides himself on an ability to document mountain culture and mountain lifestyle in addition to capturing the action.

A founding editor of The Ski Journal, Grant served as the publication's photo editor for six years before earning the title of photo editor emeritus. He has shot for a long list of ski, bike and outdoor publications including Outside, ESPN, Skiing, Backcountry, Bike, Freehub, Kootenay Mountain Culture, Ski Canada, and Powder Magazine, where he served as senior photographer for over a decade. He has tallied more than 250 covers of European, Japanese and North American publications.

One of the industry's most dedicated, passionate and professionally organized photographers, Grant has worked with a deep roster of influential pro athletes and for an extensive list of authentic mountain brands. His images have set the tone for everything from digital marketing campaigns and product launches to seasonal catalogs and store displays. His visual storytelling has defined editorial features and his work hangs framed on the walls of hundreds of ski houses and mountain cabins.

A featured social media contributor for National Geographic Adventure, Grant has also twice been selected to compete in the prestigious Olympus Pro Photographer's Showdown. When he is not traveling the globe in search of deep snow or good light, you will find him lapping his local Galbraith Mountain trails, tinkering with mechanical projects out in his shop or teaching his son how to stick the landing.

“ I’ve never worked with a photographer that works quite as hard as Grant does. From sun up to sun down, day after day, Grant is out there, working his tail off to make beautiful shots happen. And the bonus is he always does it with a smile on his face. A true pleasure of a photographer to work with.”

“Grant is one of the hardest working photographers out there. It shows in his ability to consistently produce cutting-edge action photography in the Pacific Northwest, one of the darkest and wettest environments a photographer could possibly work in. He has pioneered techniques with off-camera flash to produce some of the most memorable imagery skiing has ever seen.”

“Grant has really helped us bring out the true character of our destinations through authentic, unique and downright stunning photography. He’s fully committed to his craft and always focused on nailing the shot – each and every time. Grant may very well have the perfect mix of artistry, efficiency and work ethic and it makes the decision to hire him a no-brainer.”
